

SRA Update

Issue 133 - November 2024

- General updates [#tab_098e1]
- Compliance updates [#tab_098e2]

Welcome to the latest issue of SRA Update. Following extensive engagement with you, the public and other stakeholders, we have finalised three consultations as part of our Consumer Protection Review. Safeguarding client money is of paramount importance, and we want your views on proposals that keeps such funds safe. We have also published guidance for in-house solicitors, again following extensive engagement. This includes guidance for employers to outline their lawyers' obligations. And for those that missed our Compliance Officers Conference, we will be running our virtual version next week (November 25-28). Sign up for sessions on anti-money laundering, cybercrime and continuing competence, alongside many more.

Consultation on potential changes to how client money is handled

As part of our ongoing review of consumer protection arrangements in the legal sector, we are consulting on potential changes to how and when law firms handle client money, and how this money is protected. We are also consulting on future arrangements for the SRA Compensation Fund, including how the scheme is funded.

Independent report on enforcement finds complex picture

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/independent-report-overrepresentation/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/independent-report-overrepresentation/)

An independent report into the over-representation of Black, Asian and minority ethnic solicitors in the early stages of our enforcement process has found a complex issue with no single or simple solution. The study found that some factors intersect with ethnicity, including the size of the firm where the solicitor works and the firm's practice area.

Do you know what to do to confirm qualifying work experience?

[<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-131-approving-qwe/>]

Under the SQE route, all solicitors are eligible to confirm an SQE candidate's period of qualifying work experience. Even if you haven't been involved in approving training, you might be asked to do this!

Focus on in-house

Dedicated guidance issued to support in-house solicitors [<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/topic/all-topics/>]

Following feedback on drafts published earlier this year, we have issued a package of new guidance materials designed to directly support the 34,500 plus solicitors working in-house across England and Wales. The material includes guidance for both those of you who work in-house yourselves, and also bespoke guidance for your employer.

In-house solicitors' professional obligations, a guide for employers

This guidance is designed for in-house solicitors to share with your employer, and is designed to help them understand the regulatory duties and standards you work to, and what this means in context of your work for them.

Read more about: In-house solicitors' professional obligations, a guide for employers

CEOs and boards employing in-house solicitors

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/governing-boards-chief-executives-senior-officers/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/governing-boards-chief-executives-senior-officers/)

We have created separate guidance aimed specifically at boards and leaders of organisations that employ in-house solicitors. This aims to facilitate discussions about the mutual expectations of both parties and to help them better understand the varied roles and responsibilities of an in-house solicitor.

Identifying your client when working in-house

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/identifying-client-working-in-house-guidance/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/identifying-client-working-in-house-guidance/)

In all settings, it is important to be clear about who your client is from the outset. This is straightforward in a law firm, but not always so clear when working in-house. This bespoke guidance for the in-house community is designed to help give you clarity on your professional obligations in areas such as taking appropriate instructions, managing conflicts and ensuring client confidentiality.

Reporting concerns about wrongdoing

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/reporting-concerns-wrong-doing-working-in-house-guidance/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/reporting-concerns-wrong-doing-working-in-house-guidance/)

This guidance is to assist in-house solicitors in understanding their responsibilities when faced with concerns about actions or decisions taken by their organisation. It aims to clarify our expectations surrounding escalating and reporting concerns internally, as well as when to consider making reports externally to a relevant authority.

Running internal investigations

[<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/internal-investigations/>]

This guidance deals with the principles, behaviours and rules which you need to be aware of when you are leading, or are involved with, internal investigations. The guidance applies to both solicitors working within an organisation, and law firms running investigations into matters within their firm. It may also be informative for solicitors or firms conducting investigations on behalf of another firm: the key principles set out in the guidance would apply equally in this situation.

Legal professional privilege when working in-house

[<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/professional-privilege-in-house/>]

Legal advice given by in-house solicitors will potentially attract legal professional privilege in the same way as any other setting. This guidance is to help you understand the key issues that in-house solicitors face when considering this issue.

Accountants' reports spot-checks

[<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-133-accountant-reports-checks/>]

We will be conducting spot-checks on firms in the new year to make sure that you have obtained a recent accountant's report. Firms being asked to take part in this exercise will receive an email in December, advising them of what information they will be asked for.
