

SRA Update

Issue 137 - March 2025

- [General updates \[#tab_8bc61\]](#)
- [Compliance updates \[#tab_8bc62\]](#)

Welcome to the March issue of SRA Update. In this issue, we talk about our continuing work around high-volume claims, share an update on the Post Office IT scandal, and highlight that this year's Keeping of the Roll exercise will soon open. You will also find details of where you can watch our recent webinars covering themes such as AML, the SQE and qualifying work experience.

Paul Philip

Chief Executive

Following a number of high-profile cases of firms specialising in high-volume claims work failing, we are continuing our work to consider whether this area of the market is working as well as it should. The number of firms we are looking into for issues linked to claims work has now risen to more than 60, and we are working with wider industries to consider what more can be done.

Now that the evidence-gathering sessions of the public inquiry have finished, we have updated our statement on our investigations into the Post Office Horizon scandal. While we can't confirm the exact timeline, we are hopeful that we can launch prosecution action in some cases in the summer.

Rule changes ahead of move to HRA single assessment provider

[<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/sra/consultations/consultation-listing/changes-regulations-hra/>]

The University of Law will soon assume the role as the single assessment provider to deliver assessments for the Higher Rights of Audience (HRA) criminal and civil qualification. This means that we are consulting on minor technical changes to our rules, required ahead of this change.

Anti-money laundering sanctions webinar this month

There is still time to book onto our March AML webinar, where we will share the recent findings from our proactive sanctions work, cover the expansion of the sanctions regime, and update you on the work of The Office for Trade Sanctions Implementation. This session will be of particular interest to firms working in areas of higher risk such as international trade, or firms dealing with sanctioned entities or people.

Welcome to the March issue of SRA Update. In this issue, we provide the latest information on making claims in financial mis-selling work, as the Financial Ombudsman Service is introducing a new charge for claims made via a professional representative. The National Crime Agency is hosting an online workshop to help smaller firms improve the quality of suspicious activity reports – let them know if you are interested. And we have updated one of our anti-money laundering Q&As to clarify the position around cryptocurrency.

New charge for financial product mis-selling claims [<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-137-new-charge-financial-product-mis-selling/>]

The Financial Ombudsman Service will next month start charging for compensation claims made through ‘professional representatives’. Each application will be £250, although 70 per cent is refunded if the claim is successful. We have guidance for those firms who run financial product mis-selling claims.

Cryptocurrency query updated [https://jobs.sra.org.uk/solicitors/resources/money-laundering/aml-questions-answers/#collapse_2d4d/]

We have updated a question in our anti-money laundering Q&A about accepting cryptocurrency as a payment. We do not recognise crypto as money that can be paid into the client account. A valid client account can also only be used via a bank or building society, and neither have the facilities for crypto at this stage.
