

SRA Update

Issue 123 - January 2024

- [General updates \[#tab_350b1\]](#)
- [Compliance updates \[#tab_350b2\]](#)

Welcome to the latest issue of SRA Update and a happy New Year to you too.

In this issue, we look at the recently-published firm diversity data, which shows how the profession continues to improve but there is more to do. There is a useful tool you can use to see how you compare to similar firms. We have also levied further fixed fines, which enable us to deal with non-complex breaches of our rules more swiftly. So far these are mainly for not complying with our transparency rules. These rules help people compare law firms' services and make informed choices. Compliance is not optional - we have lots of support to help you comply. Finally, we have a range of events coming up. These are two webinars on assessing your money laundering risks, another on changes to how we present SQE1 exam results, and following the success of our inaugural event last year, we will be running an in-person event for in-house solicitors.

We have published the latest diversity data that law firms supplied us with. It shows diversity within law firms is continuing to slowly improve year-on-year - with smaller firms more diverse than larger ones - so the profession continues to more closely reflect the communities it serves.

We have also published data for the in-house sector, which makes up around a fifth of the profession. This gives us a better idea of where solicitors from certain demographics are working, such as for government departments or in the private sector.

Fixed penalties for technical breaches continue [https://jobs.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/2024-press-releases/more-fixed-penalties/]

We issued our first fixed penalties in November for failure to adhere to the transparency rules. Issuing such fines was brought in as part of our new financial penalties regime. We have now issued further penalties to a number of other firms.

Webinar - SQE: Scaled scoring and SQE1 results [https://events.sra.org.uk/sra/669/home]

Find out more about how we have changed the way we present SQE1 assessment results. Our free webinar features Julie Swan, our Director of Education and Training, and colleagues from our assessment partner Kaplan. It is aimed at aspiring solicitors and training providers, and you can send us any questions when you book your place or ask them during the webinar.

Reporting cybercrime incidents

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/sra/news/sra-update-123-cybercrime/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/sra/news/sra-update-123-cybercrime/)

Most of you will remember that we wrote to compliance officers before Christmas following some recent high-profile cyberattacks on law firms. We wanted to remind you of our expectations in terms of reporting an attack to us and having business continuity processes in place.

Minor changes to our rules came into force on 1 November 2023. These were tweaks to our Standards and Regulations, which were introduced in 2019. We consulted on these small changes, following suggestions from the profession that the original drafting risked potential unintended consequences.

Focus on AML

Politically exposed persons - changes to the regulations [<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/sra/news/sra-update-123-pep-changes/>]

The money laundering regulations have been changed to alter the status of politically exposed persons (PEPs) depending on whether or not they are from the UK or overseas. While you must still carry out the same amount of due diligence, such PEPs are now deemed lower risk.
