

SRA Update

Issue 128 - June 2024

- General updates [#tab_b5341]
- Compliance updates [#tab_b5342]

In this month's edition, there is the opportunity to have your say on our business plan for next year. In it we aim to continue to deliver our priorities, while responding to new and emerging challenges within the sector. Alongside this, we are consulting on practising fees and compensation fund contributions. We have kept fees stable but are proposing that compensation fund contributions need to rise this year. That is to meet the considerable costs of increasing interventions and claims in the last year. You can get more detail on our thinking, and ask questions, at our webinar on our business plan next week. Please let us know your views by responding to our consultation. Also, this month, we have published an updated warning notice on strategic litigation against public participation (SLAPPs), and research on the issues that are driving differential outcomes in legal assessments by ethnicity. You can also find an update on our work investigating the issues falling out of cavity wall insulations claims handled by the SSB Group and Pure Legal.

Have your say on our plans for the coming year by taking part in our 2024-25 Business Plan consultation. As well as outlining our planned activities for the year ahead, the consultation also outlines how we intend to allocate our budget and what that means for our part of the practising certificate fee. It also covers the proposed rise in compensation fund contributions for next year.

Exeter research challenges sector to work together to tackle ethnicity assessment differences

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/tackling-ethnicity-gaps-outcomes-assessments/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/tackling-ethnicity-gaps-outcomes-assessments/)

We are calling on the legal, education and training sectors to work with us to tackle issues leading to differential outcomes in professional legal assessments by ethnicity. It follows the publication of research we commissioned to understand why candidates from certain ethnic groups perform better than others.

Researchers and our corporate strategy

[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/sra/corporate-strategy/#collapse_f008]

Some of you might be contacted by Thinks, a research company carrying out a study for us on our work and delivering our corporate strategy. The survey will explore your views on progress against our mission to drive trust and confidence in legal services. If asked to take part, responses will be treated confidentially and data reported at aggregate level, meaning it will not be personally identifiable to you.

Share your thoughts on protection for clients [<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/consumer-protection-review-launched/>]

We want to hear your thoughts on our review of consumer protection arrangements in response to shifting risks in the sector. The review focuses on how to reduce the risk of something going wrong at a law firm, while finding the right balance between protections and potential impact on the cost of legal services. Included in this review is consideration of compensation fund arrangements.

Scam alerts – police your identity

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-127-scam-alerts/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-127-scam-alerts/)

We have warned for many years about identity theft affecting law firms. Criminals routinely take your good name in a bid to trick the public into sharing confidential information or transferring money. We have already seen more than 80 cases of such scams in the first quarter of this year. Find out about recent trends, so you can protect yourself against this.

Welcome to the latest issue of Compliance News. We have updated our warning notice on strategic litigation against public participation (SLAPPs) to incorporate the findings from a range of work: our thematic review, our investigations, and engagement with those involved in reputation management and media work. The warning notice includes information on caselaw and making sure representing your client's interests does not override your other duties and obligations. Last month we published a warning notice on financial product mis-selling claims. This month we highlight our guidance on mass claims work in general. And just a reminder that this year's compliance conference takes place in Birmingham on 5 November. So please put that date in the diary – I look forward to seeing you many of you there.

SLAPPs – warning notice update

[\[https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/updated-slapps-warning-notice-2024/\]](https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/updated-slapps-warning-notice-2024/)

Although firms must seek to represent a client's best interest, that should never cross the line into abusing the legal process or over-riding a solicitor's duty as an officer of the court. We have updated our warning notice on strategic litigation against publication participation (SLAPPs) to help those who conduct litigation and who give dispute resolution and pre-action advice to make sure they understand their duties and recognise red flags when it comes to clients' instructions.

New guidance on mass compensation claims [<https://jobs.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-128-mass-claims/>]

Our warning notice last month focused on mass claims work that involved financial product mis-selling. The warning notice was accompanied by guidance for firms involved in any mass claims work. That guidance highlighted areas where firms could be at risk of falling foul of the rules.
